OVER PRODUCTION OF LEGISLATION

Ambassador Bryce Addresses the New York State Bar Association on the Subject.

DIFFICULT TO HAVE IT GOOD.

Of Those Who Demand it Many De Not Know Exactly What the Evil is Mor Proper Remedy to Apply.

Naw York, Jan. 24.—British Ambassador James Bryce addressed the State Bar association at a meeting in Carnegla hall tonight. The ambassador dwelt upon the form and substance of the ever-increasing volume of legisla-

In no country, said Mr. Bryce, is the output of legislation so large as in the United States, where, besides Congress, 46 states legislatures are busily at work turning out laws on all imaginable sub-jects, with a faith in the power of law to bless mankind which few historians or philosophers and few experienced lawyers will be found to share. The demand for a profusion of legislation is inevitable. The difficulty of having it good consists in three things:

If good consists in three things:
First, of those who demand legislation many do not understand exactly what is the evil they desire to cure, the good they seek to attain.
Secondly, when they do understand the evils, they seldom know what is the proper remedy. proper remedy, the evils, they seldom know what is the proper remedy.

Thirdly, the number of measures, remedial and constructive called for, is so large that it is very nard to select out of them those urgently needed.

Mr. Bryce said conditions made it desirable to have some ofganized system for the gathering and examination of materials for legislation and especially for collecting the laws passed in other countries on subjects of current importance. To secure the pushing forward of measures needed in the public interest there should be in every legislature arrangoments by which some definite persons or body of persons become responsible for the conduct of legislation. To secure sufficient time for the consideraor body of persons become responsible for the conduct of legislation. To secure sufficient time for the consideration of measures of general and permanent applicability, such matters as those relating to the details of administration or in the nature of executive orders should be left to be dealt with by the administrative department of government, under delegated power, possibly with a right to disapprove reserved to the legislature. Similarly the more detailed rules of legal procedure ought to be left to the judicial department or some body commissioned by it, instead of being regulated by statute. Bills of a local or personal nature ought to be separated from bills of general applicability and dealt with in a different and quasi-judicial way. In order to enable both the legislature and the people to learn what the statute law in force actually is, and thereby to facilitate good legislation, the statute law ought to be periodicallty revised, and so far as possible so consolidated as to be brought into compact, consistent and intelligible shape. In his annual address this afternoon President Joseph H. Choate said that there was a general disposition on the part of the press to belittle the work

President Joseph H. Choate said that there was a general disposition on the part of the press to belittle the work done by The Hague conference. Because everything had not been accomplished, the newspapers tried to claim that nothing had been accomplished. He emphasized the statement that it was a conference, not a parliament, and said that while there was a great deal of discussion, there was very little contest in the assemblage. It was an assemblage of earnest, able, cultivated men, even the smallest nations being repress sted by men of high attainrepresented by men of high attainments, and for the first time in history had brought together all the civilized nations of the world in the interest o International peace

POISONOUS EFFECTS OF DRUGS ON HUMAN SYTEM

Washington, Jan. 24 .- Although en joined from making any reference to the controversy between the American Federation of Labor and the Buck Stove & Range company, President Samuel Gompers in an editorial in the current issue of the American Federationist comments on Justice Gould's recent decision at great length and declares a purpose not to comply with all its terms.

the press and the right of free speech," declares Mr. Gompers. "We would be recreant to our duty did we not do alt in our power to point out to the people the schous invasion of their liberties which has taken place. That this has been done by judge-made injunction and not by statute law makes the menace all the greater.

"The matter of attempting to suppress the boycott of the Buck Stove & Range company by injunction, while important, yet pales into insignificance before this invasion and denial of constitutional rights. We discuss this mjunction and feel obliged as a matter of conscience and principle to protest against its issuance and its enforcement, yet we desire it to be clearly understood that the editor of the American Federationist does not consider himself thereby violating any law of either state or nation, nor does he intend or advise any disrespect toward the courts of our country. And yet inherent natural and constitutional rights and guarantees must be defended and maintained."

Mr. Gompers states that the services of some of the foremost lawyers in the country have been secured, and that the case will be carried to the United States supreme court.

Mrs. Lena May Brooks, Prairie Hall, Macon county, Ill., after several months of suffering finally found the right tonic in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says:

"I suffered terribly from a general breakdown in health, was in bed for three months and after that was able to be up only part of the time. I was sick all over, being pale, weak and thin. My appetite was gone, my head ached most of the time, and often I would faint away.

GREAT BRITAIN DEMANDS BODY OF ROBT. CALDWELL.

New York, Jan. 25.—Great Britain demands the body of Robert Caldwell, the man who testified in the Druce case in London, and was afterward in dicted on a charge of perjury. Cald-well has been ill at his home on Sta-ten Island and the case has been conthrued from time to time. Yesterday the counsel for the British ambassador appeared before United States Commis-sioner Alexander and demanded under the treaty between the two countries that Caldwell be produced in court without further adjournment of the application for extradition.

without further adjournment of the application for extradition.

Commissioner Alexander stated that owing to the inclement weather he would not insist on Caldwell's appearance today, but adjourned the hearing until Tuesday, intimating that if Caldwell was not in the court that day he would be brought to Manhattan in an ambulance and placed in a hospital in the custody of the government until such time as he was able to appear for a hearing. Caldwell testified in the hearing of the Druce case in London that Druce and the Duke of Portland were one and the same, and that he superintended the supposed burial of Druce, the coffin containing a roll of lead instead of a body. The opening of the grave showed that the coffin contained a body which answered the description of Druce. Caldwell left England suddenly after the lawyers for whom he testified practically admitted that they would not depend upon his testimony to uphold their contentions that Druce was in fact the Duke of Portland.
